The correct answer is (D). When a pronoun is used with a gerund (a verb ending in -ing), the possessive form should be utilized. His, rather than him, is the possessive form of he.

The correct answer is (B). Forms of lie and lay are often confused. Lie refers to what a person or thing is doing for himself, herself, or itself. Lay refers to what a person or thing does to someone or something else. In this case, the child lay (the past form of lie) on the examination table. We are not being told that the child was laid on the table by something or someone.
